

This is the Foundation Combined version — Higher Tier and Separate-only content removed.

Plants produce hormones that control growth, development and responses to environmental stimuli. These responses are called tropisms.