

This is the Foundation Separate version — Higher Tier content has been removed.

Plants produce hormones that control growth, development and responses to environmental stimuli. These responses are called tropisms.