

This is the Foundation Separate version — Higher Tier content has been removed.

Genetic engineering involves inserting a gene from one organism into another, allowing the recipient organism to produce a protein it could not make before.